Keeping our churches open

From Bishop Paul to the priests, 3 March 2021. "Please be careful not to give any impression that things are returning to normal at the present time – they are not. Even though places of worship have had, so far, a great deal of success in being Covid-secure establishments, we are still asked to hold essential church services only and our liturgies must be kept brief."

Please be aware that, as previously, if we cannot ensure the required number of stewards for a particular Mass, we will be obliged to cancel it. If you are able to take a turn serving as a steward, please contact Frank Miller for Garstang and Kevin Morley for Scorton. Thank you in anticipation.

Inside church:

- Avoid walking around or going to speak to people not in your household or social bubble, even with social distance, and no matter how important.
- Maintain social distance going to Holy Communion and when leaving.
- If you remain in church after Mass, take special care that you do not socialise with – even hang around for a quick catch up with – people from different households.

Outside church:

- Keep the exit clear so that others can leave safely and without anxiety.
- In the church grounds, take special care that you do not socialise with – even hang around to have a quick catch up with – people from different households, even with social distance and no matter how tempting.

Thank you for all your support and understanding over the twelve months. Please continue to pray for everyone involved in helping to roll out the vaccine; and let's all of us play our part in keeping ourselves and others safe. God bless, Fr Geoffrey.

Supporting our fellow Christians in Lebanon

What if you could provide a hot meal for a desperate Christian family in Lebanon while you enjoy your Sunday lunch at home?

You are invited to join Aid to the Church in Need and parishes all across the UK for a virtual Sunday Lunch, 21 March, to support an initiative that serves daily meals to over 1,000 Christians in and around the city of Zahle. Many of these families are refugees from Syria or local people who have lost their livelihoods because of the national financial crisis or the pandemic. They struggle every day to get by, but you can help.

Musings from my hermitage

In this Sunday's gospel, Jesus recalls an episode from the Old Testament: Just as many were saved from death in the wilderness while Moses lifted high the bronze serpent, so many will be saved when he, the "Son of Man," is lifted high on the cross. Just as people looked upon the bronze serpent and lived, so all who believe in the redeeming cross of Jesus will be saved.

In Christ, God has entered with us into the new and eternal covenant. This is no repeat of God's past efforts: God's own Son has given his life for us. The One who was truly God and truly human carried to his cross the sin of the world. The cross and resurrection — the paschal, Easter mystery — reveals Jesus as the One who offers life eternal.

For the entire human race, for a world still blighted by conflict, hunger, and oppression, the cross of Jesus is a new start, just as it's a new start for each of us. Through baptism, we have been united with Christ in his cross and resurrection; our names now feature in the chronicle of God's tireless quest; the Creator's quest to draw all people into his life and love and vision.

God has brought us to life in Christ. How might we live this gift more fully? We are God's "work of art." How can we allow God to shape us into the people he created us to be?
